About Me

I am a self-taught front-end developer with over six months of experience, gained while working full-time.
I've completed several bootcamps, building strong skills in modern web development.
I'm particularly interested in how front-end development intersects with social media and virtual assistance.
After ten years in hospitality, I sought a more creative and fulfilling challenge.
My passion for learning and creativity keeps me motivated to stay current with the latest trends and technologies.
